NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

It's the singing hen that is the layer.

Stick up around the place before the snows fly.

The neglected hen is an indifferent profit maker.

Overcrowding means no profits with the poultry.

Open furrows through the grain field to carry off the surplus water.

Take a little pride in your place and have it trim and tidy on the road side.

Sunlight for the calf pens! Remember that, if you would have them thrifty.

It is a mistake to keep ewes that are over five or six years old. Fatten and market.

Do not breed the ewes before they are from a year to 18 months old, if you would have large sheep.

The better farmer is evolved from the farmer that sees his mistakes and tries to do better next time.

Certified milk is simply clean milk whose quality is vouched for by the producer and some accredited party.

Whatever it is that you have not done that you have intended doing quit your promissory attitude and DO IT NOW.

Be sure that the stables and pens are thoroughly cleaned and white-washed before the winter weather sets in earnest.

Dirty, musty bedding does not make good feed for the horses, and they will not eat it if given enough good hay and feed.

Don't leave the potatoes in the ground too long. Water-soaked ground or blistering sunshine do not do them any good after the vines are dead.

No farmer to-day can afford to let his boy, whom he hopes to have succeed him upon the old farm, go without a course at the state agricultural college.

Not only oil the farm machinery when putting it away, but paint the wooden parts. It doesn't take much paint, but it makes the machines and tools last a good sight longer.

Money in raising colts if you do the square thing by mare and offspring from start to finish. But don't think you can get a good animal from a scrub stallion. Remember that blood will tell.

When weaning two or more colts at the same time take care that one does not become the boss and rob the others of their food. In many cases of unthrift it is due to lack of nourishment from this cause.

A sup of milk for the cats will keep them tied to the dairy barn and make them good partners in keeping the place free from rats and mice. Remember that many a farmer loses a tidy sum in providing board for the rodents.

If you do not clean the fertilizer attachment to the grain drill before putting away for the winter and oil the parts, you will find in the spring an incrustation on the inside that will be hard to clean and which has eaten well into the iron.

Pianos, like many other things which contribute to the joy and profit of life, are finding their way more and more into the farmhouses of the land, and women folks are learning to play them, too. Pleasant on the winter evenings to have a good play and sing.

In severe cases of "kneestrings" give the horse complete rest, shorten the toe and apply a high-heeled shoe and hot fomentations continuously, or cold, astringent lotions. When heat and tenderness subside the high-heeled shoe may be dispensed with, the foot shod level and active blisters applied. Iodide of mercury is the best.

Where cheese is made on the farm, a new tin washboiler will serve as a cheese vat, and a clean, splint basket will do for a drainer. The mold can be made from a discarded peck measure. If rennet tablets cannot be secured rennet can usually be purchased of a butcher, since it comes from the lining of the fourth stomach of a calf. Tablets are the most convenient, and can be secured from most drug stores, or all dairy supply houses. One tablet will make 200 pounds of cheese.

Rape makes a good pasture for hogs.

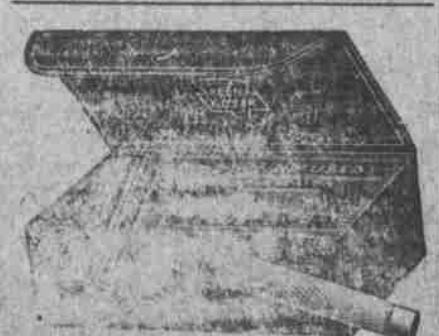

Plow the land only when it crumbles away from the plow.

Not, "Shall I build a silo?" but "How large shall I build it?"

Get things in shape for the winter. Make the poultry snug.

Try feeding wheat to the hens and see if it will increase the egg yield.

Kind words is the oil that makes the machinery of life run smoothly.

They cost $3.50 and are better than the five dollar kind. Try one thirty days and then if you are dissatisfied come back and get your money.

S. G. Sadler Hdw. Company

Get after the tent caterpillars in the trees. Cut out their nests and burn them.

Why not a good dairy if a dairy herd at all? You can have such by care in breeding.

Currant bushes should be propagated only from bushes that bear the most and best fruit.

Attend to the tile draining this fall. Perhaps all that ails that young orchard is the need of tilling.

Poison vines growing in the fence corners are poor testimonials to a farmer's character. Dig 'em out.

Good winter quarters must be provided for the sheep if they do well. They need sunlight, fresh air and dry floor.

Neglected to mark the turkeys and now there comes the dispute with the neighbors as to who's who, and what's what.

Pound for pound, sheep manure is three times as valuable as cow manure. One argument in favor of keeping sheep on the farm.

The manure spreader is a drudge saver. Many a farmer thinks he cannot afford one who would find that a few seasons' work would more than pay for it.

The overhead rack is a poor place from which to feed the horse. Besides being an unnatural way for the animal to feed, it causes a great deal of dust, which is a bad thing.

Have a hospital pen where the sheep that give evidence of being sick can be isolated and treated. Many a contagious disease can in this way be kept from spreading in a flock.

Pull a few of the tomato plants on which green tomatoes still hang and put in the cellar. They will ripen and you will continue to have ripe, fresh tomatoes until after Thanksgiving, if you manage right.

The chief trouble with the party line is that some folks make hogs of themselves and monopolize the telephone in visiting to the prevention of the transaction of urgent business by other parties on the same line.

The township or consolidated school for the country districts has this advantage that better teachers and better equipment can be provided at no greater expense than would be required for the several smaller district schools.

No farmer ever did things so well but that somewhere there was room for improvement. Always be on the lookout for better methods and new ideas which will make the work of the farm easier and the productivity of the farm greater.

A farm paper suggests a use for old tin cans by melting off the tops and bottoms and straightening out the tin and lining the inside of the chicken house. It certainly would make the walls and corners mice and rat proof, but how about the lice and mites? The small overlapping pieces of tin would prove ideal hiding places for the pests. This difficulty might be overcome, however, by whitewashing and making sure that the cracks were plastered flush with the whitewash.

TRY THIS FOR DESSERT.

Divulge one package of any flavored JELL-O in one pint of boiling water. When partly cooled, beat until thick, adding one cup whipped cream and 1/2 cup sugar. Whip all together and pour into a mold or bowl. Chill in refrigerator and may be served with fruit or any good pudding sauce. This is a 10 cent package and can be
